MARRIED—At the M. E. parsonage, in South Perry, Nov. 5th 1884, by Rev. W. A. Griffith, Rev. Lewis C. Alexander, of the C. A. Conference, and Miss Hannah Shuck, of Hocking Co. O.

Seven teachers were examined last Saturday. D. H. Lappan passed for two years. G. W. Lloyd, Emma Ogle, Laura Randolph and Lillie Selby passed for one year each.

Col. Joe Haller, a Hocking Democrat of the "True Blue" style, attended the Democratic ratification meeting at Shawnee and made a speech. If the Perry Democrats had a few Joe Hallers among them, the Republicans would soon be put on the run and the county redeemed from misrule.

Mr. Henry Haynes of Bloomington, and family, have removed to Logan and will take charge of the Main street Hotel, which in a short time will be opened to the public.

Mr. Haynes is an enterprising man, and we heartily welcome him and his family to the society of Logan.

Frank Kessler has not been discouraged by the damage done his establishment by the boiler explosion, but is making preparations to conduct his business upon a much larger scale than before. He is busy in making repairs, and by tomorrow, Friday, or Saturday, will have everything in readiness for work. His patrons are invited to send in their orders at once, and they will be promptly filled.

Homer L. Wright has placed on exhibition in our office a stalk of corn grown on his farm near Logan, on which grew one yellow and one red ear of corn. How this thing occurred is a nut to crack for the oldest Granger. It will be a valuable curiosity for the Museum at the Agricultural College in Columbus. Have any of our farmers anything like it?

THE JOEY PATHFINDER—Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, the Joey Pathfinders were greeted with a good audience last evening, and their performance was weathered with a large and attentive audience. The Joey Pathfinders are a new opera house. From beginning to end the performance abounded in fun, wit and humor, and should they ever return here they will be sure to be greeted with a large and attentive audience. [Council Bluffs Nonpareil.]

Gov. Hoody's Proclamation—Gov. Hoody has issued a proclamation, inspired by the disturbances in the mining regions of Hocking, Perry and Athens counties, reciting the outrages committed, and calling upon the citizens to unite in suppressing the disturbance and preserve the peace and protect the property of the people. He further says that the disturbance must cease, that he will employ all the military force of the State, if necessary, to quell the disturbance. He proposes that Ohio shall, under his administration, be a law-abiding State.

"The Joey Pathfinders"—Last night quite a large audience witnessed the presentation of "Scraps" at the Academy of Music. As a light comedy, "The Joey Pathfinders" was the best that appeared here this season, and the continued applause of the audience showed that they were appreciated. Oscar Sisson in his special character, is excellent, while Miss Josie Sisson's graceful acting and sweet voice are always applauded. Miss Loper, in her various impersonations, is worthy of special notice. Claude, the negro character, was capital indeed, there are no "sticks" in the company, and the entertainment is free from everything coarse or offensive. "The Joey Pathfinders" can return to the Williamsport and get a good house. Daily Sun & Banner, Williamsport, Pa.

COURT.—Court opened on Monday. Judge Friesner presiding. The docket was called and cases assigned. No case involving any special interest to the public is for trial this term.

The Grand Jury organized by the appointment of Thos. Meltrim as Foreman. About 300 witnesses are before this body, and its session is likely to be a protracted one.

In charging the Jury, Judge Friesner called their special attention to the turbulent state of affairs reported to be existing in the mining region. He instructed the Grand Jury to inquire into the reported assaults upon persons and destruction of property, and find, if possible, the violator of law, so that punishment might be imposed upon the actually guilty parties.

There is properly no Grand Juryman from Ward township. A large number of witnesses are before the Jury from that locality, testifying to their knowledge of the outrages reported committed.

DEATH OF GEORGE COOK.

George Cook, foreman of the Sentinel, died at his home in Logan on Monday, Nov. 17th, at 8:45 in the evening. Soon after the death of his wife in March of last year, he took sick, consumption developed, ending his useful life in the age of maturity of manhood.

Geo. Cook was born in Illinois, Hocking county, O., Aug. 18th, 1844.

The boy occupied himself with the usual work of the farm. When about 15 years of age he went to Lancaster, and became an apprentice in the Lancaster Gazette office. The war broke out and the brave spirits of the nation responded. In October, 1861, he volunteered in Co. F, of the 46th O. V. I. He was but a child in size and not a man in age.

He was in all the battles of his regiment, never missed a day from duty.

He participated in the battles of Pittsburgh Landing, Corinth, Holly Springs, Jackson, Black River, Vicksburg, Chattanooga, Knoxville, Lookout Mountain, Mission Ridge, Snake Creek, Resaca, Dallas, Atlanta, Joe Johnston. From Atlanta he went with Sherman to the sea, was at Savannah, Beaufort and Raleigh.

He went to Washington and was honorably discharged at Louisville, Ky., July 27th, 1865.

He was a brave and gallant soldier, never violating an order and never flinching from a duty. He was the favorite of his comrades, and the petted boy of his regiment.

His warfare is over and he sleeps the sleep that knows no waking. After the war he came to Logan and entered the Sentinel office, completing his apprenticeship with Mr. C. M. Gould, the proprietor. When Mr. C. M. Elder took charge of the Sentinel, Mr. Cook became foreman, which position he has held, with slight interruptions, ever since.

In 1873 he established the Nelsonville Miner, and conducted it for some time with marked ability. The depression of business, growing out of the Great Strike, compelled him to remove the office to Shawnee, where with Mr. Wm. Dwyer he published the Journal. His attachment to the Sentinel and to Logan soon drew him home and since, he has been Foreman, in every sense the foreman of the paper.

He was married to Mary E. Case, daughter of Judge Oakley Case, on Feb. 13th, 1870.

Six children, four boys and two girls, are the fruit of this union, all of whom survive him.

He bore his long sickness with the fortitude of a christian martyr, and the heroic courage of a soldier, directing the affairs of the printing office when scarcely able to move on his feet, and tending help when his hands were almost cold and palsied in death. His last day in the office was on the Saturday following the election, when he came in to join with the boys in rejoicing over the news of the success of the Democrats, among whom he had always been an ardent and enthusiastic worker.

On last Friday he was baptized by Rev. Burns and made a profession of faith in the Methodist Church. His dying moments were consoled by a christian hope and a firm belief in the sanctifying graces of the sacrament he had received. His prayer ever on his whispering lips was "Jesus, take me as I am."

An hour before his death he called all his children around him, advised them to be good, avoid bad habits and shun bad company, and be dutiful and obedient to their grandfathers. He was conscious until within a very few moments of dissolution. His last words were to his departed wife, whose angel spirit hovered over him, "Mary, Mary, I come."

On Tuesday evening the News-papers of Logan, publishers and printers, met and resolved to attend his funeral in a body, and wear a badge of mourning for 30 days. Appropriate resolutions of respect were passed which appear elsewhere.

The soldiers held a meeting and arranged to attend the funeral and give him burial in the honors of war.

Out of respect, Judge Friesner adjourned court during the hours of the funeral.

His funeral was largely attended. Rev. G. W. Burns, of the M. E. Church, conducting the exercises, and preaching an impressive sermon showing that life-brief as it was in this instance, his worth living for. A memorial from him appears elsewhere.

Gordon, J. G. Fisher, Ed. L. Davenport, John P. Steadman, D. M. Miller, Jacob Fox and Philip Slisher.

Comrades Davenport and Miller were chosen from the printers. Mr. Gordon, of Lancaster, was a comrade in his company. Lloyd Myers acted as Master of Ceremonies, and conducted the solemn proceedings with order and decorum, reciting at the grave a brief narrative of the dead soldier's military career.

The coffin was draped with his flag, and adorned with flowers, wreath from Mrs. Schimp, roses from the children, and an anchor and cross from Mrs. Green.

Before the grave was closed the squad under command of Comrade Wyman, fired three volleys.

The soldier sleeps in his glory and in peace.

Geo. Cook was a warm hearted, honest, brave fellow. He was a master of his profession, and took a pride in doing his work equal to the best. He was faithful and true. He was as close to his work as a brother and as warm as blood. He was a dutiful son of the Sentinel, and we mourn his loss with feeling which cold types can not tell.

His case in our office is empty. His stick lost beyond recovery. The Form is made up. It is our prayer and our hope that the last Edition of his life's closing volume, will be a bright page in the files of the Recording Angel.

May the spirits of the blessed immortals whom the types attempt to typify, give him genial companionship among the craft, and may God bless him and have him in heaven.

Tribute to George Cook.

At a meeting of active and experienced printers to take action on the death of George Cook, D. H. Willard was called to the Chair, and A. H. Wilson was appointed Secretary.

At the meeting of C. A. Barker, a committee of three was appointed to draft suitable resolutions, and the Chair appointed Chas. L. Barker, Ed. L. Davenport and D. A. Miller.

The Committee on Resolutions reported as follows, which report was adopted.

IN MEMORIAM. At a meeting of editors, publishers and printers, held on Tuesday night, November 18th, 1884, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, It hath pleased Almighty God, in His unsearchable wisdom to remove by death our brother craftsman, George Cook; and

WHEREAS, It is proper for us, who have been so intimately associated with him in life, at this time to express our regard for our deceased friend and brother craftsman, therefore,

RESOLVED, that in the death of George Cook, the printers of Logan and the Hocking Valley, have not only lost one of their ablest practical workmen, but also an adviser and a friend in the profession, whose loss will be keenly felt, whose genial nature and kindness of heart are well known to members of the craft who have needed assistance, and no printer ever applied in vain to him, whose ear was ever open to their appeal for help, and whose hand ever extended, whose fidelity to the obligations of his newspaper service, honesty with the public, fair, impartial dealings with the patrons, whose exactness in all his business relations and faithfulness in his allegiance to his paper, commends his printer's career as an example worthy of imitation by all honorable members of the profession, and

RESOLVED, that we tender to his bereaved relations our tenderest sympathy in this dark hour of affliction, and that we extend to the helpless orphan little ones our prayers for their comfort, safety and protection, and pledge our aid in any way that may assist them in their infancy and youth, and

RESOLVED, that we attend his funeral in a body, and join with his relatives in paying this last tribute to the living may render to the dead, and

RESOLVED, that the members of our craft wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days, and

RESOLVED, that a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolutions, be furnished to the family of the deceased, and that the same be published in each of the county papers.

C. I. BARKER, Ed. L. DAVENPORT, Com. D. A. MILLER, On motion the meeting adjourned. D. B. WILLARD, Chm. A. H. WILSON, Sec'y.

symptoms of the dread and deathly consumption were strongly marked, but with remarkable nerve and endurance he stood at his case until his fingers were almost stiffened in death. When confined to his room, and prostrated upon his bed, his deepest regret was that he had not lived a christian life, and he earnestly sought to be reconciled to God. Several days before his death he confessed Christ, and received Baptism. We have reason to hope that he did not call in vain the vision of his sainted wife, who lived and died a christian, has emerged into a blessed and blissful re-union in heaven.

THANKS.

The children and relatives of Geo. Cook most heartily thank their friends and neighbors for kindness shown the deceased during sickness, and for sympathy and comfort in the hour of death and affliction.

IN MEMORIAM.

Judge Oakley Case.

The funeral of Judge Oakley Case on last Sunday was the largest and most imposing ever witnessed in Logan.

Prominent citizens from all parts of the county were in attendance.

In accordance with Judge Case's request the funeral was conducted by the Knights Templar, Mt. Vernon Commandry, of which body he was a member. A special train brought the Knights of Columbus and Lancaster. A special train from Athens and Straitsville brought the Knights of Athens, and the Masons from the Straitsville and Nelsonville Lodges.

One hundred Sir Knights were present.

On the arrival of the train the Knights, accompanied by the Columbus Cadet Band, formed in procession and marched to the residence forming in a line on the street. The remains were placed upon the pavement where a final look and parting was taken.

The procession formed, and preceded by the band and followed by the hearse and carriages, moved to Main, down Main to Mulberry, up Mulberry to Hunter, thence to the church. The commodious church was packed, and only room could be attained for the pall bearers and the Knights taking part in the burial service.

Rev. Burns opened service by reading the 90th Psalm and verses from the 11th chapter of St. John. The choir sang a hymn which was followed by a prayer from Mr. Burns.

MEMORIAL TRIBUTE.

Mr. Burns read the following very appropriate Memorial Tribute (see published elsewhere).

Rev. Williams, a Sir Knight, spoke a feeling tribute to the memory of the deceased, after which the Knights took charge of the exercises following the impressive ritual of the order.

At the conclusion of the church service the remains were taken to Oak Grove Cemetery, where the final ceremonies were performed.

Eminent Commander King, of Columbus, officiated. The pall bearers were two Knights of Columbus, John W. Work, Jacob Butin, Raymond Belt, and Jesse L. Collins, of Logan.

The funeral was one worthy of the lamented dead, and its impressive lessons shows that a useful and honorable life survives in the hearts of the living, and preserves in grateful remembrance the memory of the dead.

Memorial Tribute to Judge Oakley Case.

Delivered by Rev. Burns, at the funeral in the M. E. Church, Sunday, Nov. 16th, 1884.

Oakley Case was born in Symsbury, Connecticut, June 29th, 1824. Died in Logan, Ohio, November 12th, 1884, aged 60 years, 44 months. When but a boy in 1840 he came to Logan where he has had an almost unbroken residence for more than 44 years.

While a youth he sought the best educational advantages available and attended college, both at Athens and Granville. January 21st, 1845, he was married to Miss Margaret A. James. Three sons and five daughters were the fruit of this union. The widow and four children survive the husband and father. His active and public life began very early. Some months before he reached his majority he purchased and began to edit the Hocking Sentinel. The same week he was married his first paper was issued, and for 13 years he conducted this enterprise with ability and success. Under the management of Judge Case the Sentinel was so enlarged, the circulation so increased and its influence so extended that it took place as one of the leading journals of Southern Ohio. So permanent was his impress upon his paper that even yet it claims him as its father and founder. Part of the time he conducted the paper he was in charge of the Post Office of Logan. After serving for a few years with his brother (the Probate Judge) at that time) as deputy, in 1860 he was elected to that office, which he held for two terms, or six years. The citizens of Logan showed their confidence and appreciation by electing him to the office of Mayor. He served one term as Representative of this county in the State Legislature, and was re-elected, but before the close of his second term he resigned to accept the position of Chief Clerk in the office of Secretary of State. Some 20 years ago Judge Case was admitted to the bar, and continued in the practice of his profession until three years ago last February, when he received a sudden attack that resulted in blindness, and permanently unfitted him for business and laid him aside from the active duties of life.

Judge Case was widely known and highly esteemed. As a citizen he was public spirited, active and influential. As an editor he sought to instruct, elevate and inform the minds and views of his readers. As an official he was competent, ready, obliging and popular. As a Representative, he was able and honest and commanded the confidence of his constituents. He was of a social and sympathetic nature, he found friends in all the walks of life. He was an illustration of the scriptural proverb, "If a man would have friends he must show himself friendly." He was affable and accessible to all. His large heart, open hand, genial and generous nature, gave him a warm place in the hearts of a large circle. As a member of the Order so largely present here today, he was loyal to obligation and enthusiastic and efficient in promoting its interests. He was a man of decided domestic taste. He loved his family and enjoyed his home. As husband and father he was kind, indulgent, patient, cheerful and affectionate to his wife and family. His neighbors and guests had a warm welcome at his fireside, and found a generous hospitality at his board. Our Brother suffered much, but bore it patiently and "endured as seeing him who is invisible." He put his trust in the Savior of men, enjoyed greatly religious conversation and devotional services at his bedside, and often and earnestly expressed the hope that through Him whom God raised from the dead, he would have an inheritance, incorruptible, undimmed, and that fade not away. I only speak the sentiments of this community when I say of Judge Case, that in all the walks of life he was faithful to his trusts and conscientious and persistent in discharge of duty, and in all the relations of life he was one of the truest and best of men.

Card of Thanks.

Mrs. O. Case and her family desire to return their heart felt thanks to their good neighbors and friends for long continued and untiring kindness and attention shown during sickness, and to also thank the people and the members of the masonic order for the respect and honor shown by their attendance at the funeral.

Sudden Death of Joseph Deasley.

Joseph Deasley, one of our old and best known citizens, was found dead in his bed on last Sunday evening, at his residence on the corner of Hunter and Walnut streets. He had been in usual health, and had sent his daughter to a neighbors on an errand. She was not gone longer than an hour, on her return the old man was found dead, in his bed, an open prayer book resting on his breast.

A post mortem examination by Drs. Pullen and Mansfield developed the fact that his lungs were badly diseased and that a blood vessel had ruptured filling the lungs and air tubes, causing almost instant death. An obituary appears elsewhere.

Card of Thanks.

The family and friends of Joseph Deasley, deceased, desire thus to extend their thanks to kind friends and neighbors for attention in this hour of bereavement.

Resolutions of Respect.

ZARA McDANIEL, Logan, O., Nov. 11th, 1884. To the Grand Officers and members of Hocking Valley Lodge, No. 267, I.O.O.F.:

Your committee appointed to draft resolutions on the death of Brother Zara McDaniel, would submit the following for your approval.

That in the inscrutable wisdom of an Allwise Providence, He has seen fit to call from our midst to rest, our worthy Brother, Zara McDaniel.

That in his death this Lodge sustains an irreparable loss, his family a devoted husband and the community a worthy member.

That while we express our sincere regrets and profound sorrow at the decease of our Brother, and do humbly and reverently bow in sad submission to "Him who doeth all things well," let us always cherish and try to emulate his christian spirit and his many virtues, and so live, that when the "Great Reaper" shall call us, we may be ready to join our Brother who has gone before. Therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That this Lodge extend to his family and friends our sincere and heart felt sympathy in this their great sorrow.

RESOLVED, That a copy of the Resolutions be furnished to the widow, and be published in the county papers, and the Adelphi Border News be requested to copy.

Respectfully Submitted, E. B. COMLY, DAVID FENNY, A. H. WILSON, Com.

Only Recollections.

Mr. Drape, the real estate broker, read a paper on oil production and consumption before the Historical Association, an extract of which is as follows:

While it is a source of wonderful revenue to the producing operator, it is at the same time a rapidly depleting force to the bank balance of the novice. The origin of petroleum is involved in greater obscurity than the origin of coal. Some contend that it is a substance of organic origin, while others claim it is of a mineral origin. The first oil company of which we have any knowledge existed in Venango county in 1829. A couple of men gathered a few barrels of oil from Oil creek and procuring a horse and wagon, began vending it throughout the country as a medicine. The name was derived from a few barrels of oil from Oil creek and the Kaptians recognized its value 1700 B. C. On one of the Ionian islands there is an old fountain that has flowed for over 2,000 years. General Hayes states that in 1846 he purchased the entire product of the Franklin region, amounting to sixteen barrels, and resold it in this city at $1 per gallon.

This was probably the first corner in oil. In 1845 Lewis Peterson, Sr., brought a sample of oil from Petroleum to this city from his salt well at Tarentum. Mr. Morrison Foster and David Anderson experimented with it and found that it could be made into an excellent lubricator. It was used in the Hope cotton factory for ten years, the proprietors being the only ones cognizant of the fact. The Pennsylvania Rock Oil Company was formed in this year, and experimented in the neighborhood of Titusville. On August 28, 1853, oil in large quantities was first discovered. The first cargo was brought down on the steamer Venango in 1860 by Captain Reynolds. The cargo was resold, disposed of at 32 cents per gallon. This lucky venture sounded the keynote to the oil interests in Venango and other counties, and the entire district was thrown into a blaze of excitement. Oil City, Pithole, Tidoute and other cities spring up with mushroom rapidity, and Oil creek became the center of ceaseless activity. The first oil carried across the Atlantic was in 1860, and taken over by a canal boat in domestic traffic. The traffic has increased to such an extent that now several hundred vessels are engaged in transporting it across the sea. In 1861, the exports amounted to 80,000 gallons, while in 1883 the shipments amounted to over 492,000,000 gallons. During the past twenty-five years, the raw material has fluctuated in price from 41 cents to $20 per barrel, with an average price of $2.50 per barrel.—Pittsburg Commercial Gazette.

He Wasn't From the Woods.

Two fashionably dressed young men passed an old gentleman on Broadway near Eighth street on Saturday afternoon, and attracted his attention by laughing. At Bleeker street the old gentleman was accosted with a pleasant "How do you do?" and one of the young men wanted to shake hands. "I do not know you," said the old gentleman, drawing back.

"Oh, yes, you remember me," said the young man, "I am a clerk at the Metropolitan Hotel three or four days ago." The old gentleman who had never smoked a cigar in his life, insisted that he was not acquainted with the stranger.

"You do know me," persisted the young man. "Let us take a little walk together and I will convince you." "It isn't necessary; for, come to think of it, I do know you. You are an infatigable little bongo stealer," said the old gentleman.

"Sir," said the young man, "you have lost me. You wrong me. I will have you arrested for calling me such names."

"This is too much for the old gentleman. He drew back his heavy walking stick and punched the young man in the stomach with the ferule. He doubled him for a moment and the old gentleman indignantly pounded him on the back. The young man howled loudly and fled up Broadway. The old gentleman forced his way out of the crowd and started to cross Broadway.

Before he got over the other young man he had seen at Eighth street walked up to him and said:

"Beg pardon, sir, but what is the trouble?" "Take that," said the old gentleman, punching him in the stomach with his cane. "You are a companion of that bongo man who is now running up Broadway."

The fellow did not wait to hear more; he started to run away, followed by the old gentleman, who was soon out of breath.

"I would not care so much," he said as he stood for a moment to recover himself, "if they hadn't seemed to have taken me for a bongo man. If they try to rope in a man who has lived thirty-seven years in the city, just think what might happen to a real countryman."

Was Emerson's Genius Hereditary?

Mr. Whipple appears to be in some doubt whether Emerson's genius was spontaneous or hereditary. Of nature, or a hereditary product. How talent passes its utmost point and becomes genius metaphysicians no scientist has been able to explain. That every degree of capacity, even to genius, is really the result of antecedent and transmitted brain power, appears to be proven. If anything of an intangible nature has ever been proved, only the operations are not usually traceable; seldom being looked to until too late to get at all the direct and collateral evidence—by the time the "genius" is recognized, those to whom he may have owed the distinction are beyond the power of response to any questioning. It is not to the "mute inglorious Miltons" that the world owes its gratitude for
